CLEVELAND FEDERAL EXECUTIVE BOARD

Y3.F 31/20: 2

READEX

AN INSTRUMENT FOR PROGRESS

■ BACKGROUND

Beginning as a Presidential idea in 1961, Federal Executive Boards have grown into a significant force for improved management of Federal activities in many of the nation's largest cities. By bringing together the principal representatives of each Federal agency in each city, the Boards have fostered improved communication and coordination between them. At the same time excellent communications have been established between the Boards and Washington so that the field executives can learn quickly of national programs which have Presidential interest and can also secure support for their activities from the highest level of Government.

To meet the demands of our increasingly complex society, Government has become more and more specialized. This has led in turn to a growing need for improved coordination between the various Federal agencies and between the Federal family and other governmental jurisdictions. Without infringing on the authority of individual agencies, the Boards serve this need by ensuring that program managers are exposed to each other's projects and problems, by keeping in constant perspective the fact that Federal agencies represent one government, and by striving to improve liaison with other units of government at the grass roots level.

■ MEMBERSHIP

In his memorandum directing the establishment of FEBs, President John F. Kennedy stated "Each executive department and agency is directed to arrange for personal particpation by the heads of its field offices and installations in the work of these Federal Executive Boards." Board members are designated by the heads of their respective agencies and are the highest officials of the Federal Government in their locale. Membership is limited to this level to ensure adequate authority and to emphasize top management responsibility for Board effectiveness. Membership designations reside in the position rather than the current incumbent, and new incumbents of the positions automatically become Board members.

While each member has an alternate, usually his immediate deputy, he is expected to participate in Board affairs personally and fully as the responsible representative of his agency in the locality. This assures the strongest support for Presidential programs and ensures the prestige of the FEBs in their community.

■ FUTURE

While the Federal Executive Boards have successfully achieved many objectives, it has been characteristic of their operation that as new programs are undertaken more and more possibilities for Board action become apparent.

The FEBs represent an ongoing effort in Government—a force driving toward greater unity of purpose and better focus of the total Federal effort. The result is a step toward better Government, to better serve the American people.

CLEVELAND FEDERAL EXECUTIVE BOARD

FOREWORD

This directory has been compiled and published by the Cleveland Federal Executive Board to aid communications among the various Federal offices located in the Greater Cleveland area, and to assist the public which they serve. Local offices of the Executive, Legislative and Judicial Branches of the Federal Government are described with pertinent information about the organization and its mission. Key personnel in each organization are also listed.

Copies of the directory have been distributed to each of the Federal organizations listed, State and local governments, and selected public organizations. Copies have been made available to the Cleveland Public Library and its branches and to the Cuyahoga County Library system. Additional copies can be purchased from the Government Printing Office Bookstore (522-4922).

RESPONSIBILITY

The Cleveland Field Office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development administers the system of mortgage insurance developed in 1934 under the National Housing Act. It enables lenders to advance credit on more liberal terms than might otherwise be available to families of moderate means. Mortgages insured by HUD cover regular sales (single family), rental housing, special purpose housing such as that for families of low and moderate income and housing for the elderly and the handicapped.

In connection with insuring these loans, the Cleveland HUD Office services defaulted loans and sometimes assumes ownership of foreclosed properties (single family and multifamily). The HUD owned properties are sold to the public at auctions and bid offerings.

The Cleveland HUD Office is responsible for administering the Section 8 program whereby low income people have their rent subsidized. And 20+ public housing authorities are funded and monitored by the Cleveland HUD Office.

RESPONSIBILITY

The Ninth Coast Guard District Office is responsible to the Commandant of the Coast Guard for the efficient, safe and economical performance of approximately 150 separate Coast Guard facilities throughout the Great Lakes. The spectrum of Coast Guard involvement covers from the smallest recreational craft to the largest commercial vessel and includes search and rescue operations as well as the safety, security and environmental protection of the ports and waterways of the Great Lakes and part of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The Office has responsibility for the enforcement of Federal laws, including navigation and vessel inspection laws and the prevention of marine casualties, the inspection of merchant vessels and the licensing, certificating, shipment and discharge of seamen. The Office also enforces marine environmental protection laws, directs marine environmental protection activities, and directs all functions encompassing port safety and security, such as transfer of hazardous material and the implementation of vessel traffic systems.

In addition, the Office has responsibility for the control of Coast Guard ships, planes and boats engaged in saving lives and property upon the navigable waters of the Lakes and connecting rivers, and in other areas when services are warranted and requested. The Office establishes, maintains, and operates aids to navigation including both radio and visual aids. It directs icebreaking operations, military operational readiness, and the recreational boating safety grants and those Federal statutes which pertain to recreational boating construction and operation.

In cooperation with Canada, the Office is responsible for the development and administration of pilotage laws, agreements and rate settings. Included are such duties as authorization of pilot pools, pilot numbers and the issuances of notifications of pilot availability.

The Coast Guard Reserve Program including training, organization, and assignment of reserve personnel in inactive duty or intermittent active training duty is administered by this Office, as is the program for the Coast Guard Auxiliary. The Coast Guard Auxiliary Program includes administration of Auxiliary Courtesy Motorboat Exams, public education programs, and the procurement, training, and operations of Auxiliary personnel.

The Office also has primary responsibility within the Great Lakes Region for the procurement of all Coast Guard personnel, both officer and enlisted.

A twenty-four hour rescue coordination center is maintained in Cleveland for the purposes of administration and coordination of forces involved in Search and Rescue, the vessel and port safety, marine environmental protection, and law enforcement operations. The center also receives and disseminates ice and weather information.

RESPONSIBILITY

The Internal Revenue Service is responsible for encouraging and achieving the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance with tax laws and regulations and maintaining the highest degree of public confidence in the integrity and efficiency of the Service.

The Public Affairs Office provides information to taxpayers through the news media and responds to requests for information from the news media.

The Problem Resolution Office resolves taxpayers' problems that cannot be resolved through established procedures; and also identifies systemic and procedural problems within IRS that may be causing taxpayer problems and takes corrective action. Taxpayers should first try to resolve their problems through established procedures before contacting the Problem Resolution Office.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Officer is responsible for the implementation of the Equal Employment Opportunity Program which includes both affirmative action and complaint processing.

The Disclosure Office makes decisions concerning access to and the release of information in the possession of the Internal Revenue Service. Their main function is to protect the taxpayer's right to privacy while administering the disclosure provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, Freedom of Information Act, and the Privacy Act of 1974.

The Automated Data Processing Staff is responsible for all automated data processing functions in the Cleveland District. Also responsible for equipment acquisition, software development and acquisition, automated data processing support for all district functions, and automated data processing training for district personnel.

The Resources Management Division provides personnel, fiscal, training, facilities and other administrative services.

The Examination Division administers a district-wide program involving the selection and examination of all types of Federal income, excise, and estate tax returns.

The Collection Division is responsible for the securing of delinquent returns, collection of delinquent accounts, and conducting various compliance activities.

The Criminal Investigation Division investigates alleged criminal violations of the tax statutes and assembles the evidence for prosecution.

The Taxpayer Service Division conducts a year-round program of taxpayer assistance; provides comprehensive, accurate, and timely information on the taxpayers' rights and obligations; assists taxpayers in the preparation of returns; and helps to correct errors or omissions in taxpayers' accounts.

The Employee Plans/Exempt Organizations groups are responsible for issuing certain determination letters and performing examination activities on both employee plans and exempt organizations originating within the Cleveland, Ohio and Parkersburg, West Virginia, District Offices.

District Director	W. Kenneth Evans	522-4800

RESPONSIBILITY

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service is an independent agency of the Federal government created by Congress with a Director appointed by the President. Its primary duty is to promote labor-management peace. This responsibility is fulfilled by providing mediation assistance in preventing and settling collective bargaining controversies to prevent or minimize interruptions of the free flow of commerce. In states where no state mediation service is available, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service may provide assistance upon a request from the labor and management community not involved in interstate commerce or those parties in the Federal and public sector with collective bargaining relationships. Recent amendments to the Taft-Hartley Act expanded the responsibility to include mediation of collective bargaining disputes in the private non-profit health care institutions. The agency also provides technical assistance to unions and employers to help improve the labor-relations climate. The agency can give advisory assistance on specific problems and encourage the use of joint labor-management committees. The mediator can provide training and information to improve the knowledge and skill of both parties. The agency will respond to various needs of labor and management, including government employers and labor organizations, to improve their collective bargaining relationships.

Regional Director	Frederick J. Calatrello	522-3725
Regional Attorney	John Kollar	522-3722
Assistant to Regional Director	Donald Knowlton	522-3727

RESPONSIBILITY

The responsibility of the National Labor Relations Board is to administer the National Labor Relations Act, as amended, which is designed to protect the public interest by promoting industrial peace. To this end, the Act declares it to be the policy of the United States "to encourage the practice and procedure of collective bargaining and to protect the exercise by workers of full freedom of association, self-organization, and designation of representatives of their own choosing, for the purpose of negotiating the terms and conditions of their employment or other mutual aid or protection."

In furtherance of the above objective, the National Labor Relations Board has two basic responsibilities: (1) to prevent and eliminate statutory unfair labor practices relating to union or concerted activity whether committed by labor organizations or employers, and (2) to establish, usually by secret ballot election, whether or not certain units of employees having homogeneous interests wish to be represented by labor organizations for collective bargaining purposes.

The effectuation of the Board's statutory functions is accomplished through the National Labor Relations Board, which operates 33 regional offices located in the major cities of the United States. The Board consists of five members appointed by the President, and a General Counsel, also a presidential appointee. The Regional Office investigates both unfair labor practice charges and representation case petitions; prosecutes unfair labor practice cases which are determined to have probable merit; and makes decisions on representation matters, including the handling of elections to determine employee representation. The jurisdiction of the Board is limited to situations which affect interstate commerce.

The systems encompass the railroad industry of the United States as a functional and economic unit, and thus cover employees of carriers by railroad and express and sleeping-car operations, affiliated companies and joint associations directly connected with the industry; and employees of national railway labor organizations and employee representatives. In addition, this agency participates in the administration of the Federal Health Insurance program set up by the 1965 amendments to the Social Security Act (MEDICARE).

RESPONSIBILITY

The U.S. General Accounting Office, under the Comptroller General of the United States, is an independent, non-political agency in the legislative branch of the government. It provides the Congress, its committees and members with information, analyses, and recommendations concerning operations of the government, primarily the Executive Branch.

GAO is concerned that the Federal departments and agencies, through their programs and activities, carry out the mandate or intent of legislation enacted by the Congress. It plays an important part in the legislative oversight role of the Congress.
